The San José-Santa Clara Regional Wastewater Facility (RWF) is the largest advanced wastewater facility in the western U.S., treating about 110 million gallons of wastewater daily — enough to fill downtown San José's SAP Center. The RWF serves 1.4 million residents and 17,000 businesses in eight South Bay cities and unincorporated areas of Santa Clara County.

Since 1956, the RWF has operated 24 hours a day, 365 days a year to clean Silicon Valley's wastewater to very high national standards. On this tour, you'll learn about:

- The vital role the RWF plays in protecting public health, safeguarding the San Francisco Bay and wildlife, and supporting the local economy
- The RWF Capital Improvement Program, a $1.4 billion effort over 10 years to rebuild and modernize the aging facility and one of the largest public works efforts in South Bay history
